A woman who died at the Biddeford alms house! Tuesday night, at the age of nearly a himdred years. I ad passed through soine queer experiences. She was born in Ireland and came to this country, as she said, "the year of poster rot in Ireland." She had lived where she died for thirty years and it is ad had been laid out as dead three times during that time, Monday night the overseer of the farm thought she had passed from this life surely, and, was just about to stark for the undertaken when he thought he would take another look at her. When he went into the round the old lady sitting up in bed. The undertaker's visit was therefore the ferred for twenty-four hours but there is said to be no mistake about her being dead this time.

The Childen Army.

What was at one time the Chilina army, and which did such excellent work against Peru, no longer exists in its entirety. The recent revolution caused a general division and mixing up lof the old bittal on; so far as the individuals composing them were concerned. On an international question it is, however, quite protable that effect would be a very general reurion, as the harted of Chilicon this country is deeply reloted in the units of the masses, a feeling which recent events have greatly intensified.

Luring their civil disturbances there werebetween 16,000 and 20,000 troops on each side; not all, perhaps, massed at any places in theirepublic. United, the swoiled give at least 35,000 troops who have seen service and bave been engaged in ferce The Chiling Army

While such a course would not in itself ind eate a termination of diplomatic negotiations flor a settlement of the matter in depute it would give it in public, through congress, an opportunity to determ ne which conney is responsible for the present insettled state of a lairs.

It was said that the only addition to the correspondence submitted to the colone to day was a cabe message from Minister Egan saying that the Chilian government had informed him that it could not guarantee the safety of the political refugels on the Yorktown in case they were removed it, a merchant vessel which would touch in transitiat in Chilian port.

Secretary Frater was the foody absentee from the meeting.

It is expected by the navel of clais that the Yorktown will land the refugees at Callan, either to morrow night or Sudday.

While mo orders have been given to that effect, it is more than probable that the Yorktown will return to Valpuraiso without clay.

· AM CSEMENTS. Ulus Akerstrom in "The Ballet Dancer"

The first presentation in this city of "The Ballet Dancer" written by Miss Akerstrom, was given last evening at the Opera House before a large audience. The play was given a praiseworthy presentation and considerable in erest was taken in it. In the third act the stage was set in view of the audience and a rehearsal was conducted by the ballet master. This scene introduced a dance by Miss Akerstrom which was marked by much skill and grace, and she received a recall. The songs of the Mirror Quartette were encored again and again and responded to each time with lively selections. The carleature ballet dance by Mr. Brennan vas an amusing feature of the act.

This afternoon "The Pearl of Savov" will be given, and each lady occupying formance will be "Annette."

CHAPTER XIII,

"Do you believe it possible"
"Yes; I have seen it too often not to believe it possible. Men like this are different from your criminals, inasmuch as they are not able to rid themselves of the saving-principle of faith. Like the devils, they believe and tremble. I should feel no more regret for that necessity than for shooting a tiger in a jungle. Neither would you. Neither, I am certain, does Zarifa. The marvelously fortunate thing is that she came upon the ground inst at that moment when her presence was needed." "Yes," anid Derwent; "if she had been a minute later I should not be walking here with you now." He looked around, as if with a sudden sense of how near the peril had been, and how narrow the chance that he would ever look again upon the beauty of earth. Never had that beauty seemed to touch him more keenly than in con-nection with this thought. The long shadows of late afternoon were now stretching across the grounds through which he had watched Dona Zarifa walking in the morning, unconscious, as most of us are when the dark wing of Azrael. most nearly overshadows us, that he might be looking his last upon that gracions form: the wide plain stretched into magical blueness afar to meet the luminous sky, the distant purple heights luminous sky, the distant purple heights had a more niystic charm than ever in his eyes, and the fresh, delicious air seemed fraught with blessing. He had a feeling as it a new life were given to him—a life divided from that of yesterday by the gulf of a great danger, and a life which was the grift (after God) of Zarifa. "It is owing to her that I am here!" he thought, after a rush of emotion, a sease that existence had become something dearer and more precious for that fact.
